es the boy's nuts. Only when the bottom is screaming in pain does Roger get himself off.

The second scene is actually much like the first. The bottom is different, and Roger uses a paddle, but otherwise, the torture is basically the same. This time Roger is surprised when the bottom comes while receiving some particularly intense treatment. While the scene is fine, it would have been nice to have a little more variety in the video. Shotgun and Roger have come up with lots of creative methods of testicle torture in other videos, including electrodes, weights, and various pounding machines. They could have used some of them here.

Hollywood, CA 90093 or call 800/634-2242.

Pretty Boy, a film by Carsten Sonder, follows thirteen-year-old Nick (Christian Tafdrup) as he goes from run away to kept boy to member of a gang of street hustlers and thieves. Set in Copenhagen, Pretty Boy proves that dysfunctional families and urban blight are not uniquely American problems. These are the forces that drive this Danish film to its tragic conclusion.

The story is a modern love triangle. Nick is torn between Ralph (Stig Hoffmeyer), the man who gave him shelter and love man. Unfortunately, Pretty Boy uses this great premise for shock value and fails to truly examine the deeper questions of love and sexuality that lurk beneath the surface.

Certainly the sexuality of the characters is central to our understanding of the story, yet writer/director Sonder only truly explores the most traditional of the various relationships, that of the young boy and girl discovering heterosexual sex together. Nick seems to be drawn to hustling, but we never see him express sexual interest in men, yet alone older men. In fact, we never see any of the hustlers engaging in a sexual act for money. We are given clues that some are straight and others are gay, but their sexuality is kept at a distance.

Nick is attracted to Renée when he believes that she is a boy. The actress, however, is not actually androgynous enough to pass, and we never believe that she is a boy; therefore the homoeroticism of this relationship is destroyed. The movie also plays it safe with Ralph. He is, of course, a pedophile, yet he is the eunuch of pedophiles. The closest he gets to sex with Nick is watching the boy shower. All the relationships are driven by affection until Renée's gender is revealed and we see the only sex in Pretty Boy.

Psychological impotence can be due to relationship conflicts, stress, or simply not being turned on enough.

erection, a man's fear or worry about it happening again can make the problem worse. Sometimes impotence can persist long after the illness which first caused it, due to the emotional trauma from the original episode of impotence.

There are a number of medical illnesses which can cause impotence. Arteries can be damaged by cholesterol deposits in the arteries or by high blood pressure or smoking. Sometimes a vein can leak, letting the blood out too soon or keeping the penis from filling up. Disease in certain areas of the brain or spinal cord can keep neurotransmitters from getting to the penis. Peripheral neuropathy from diabetes, AIDS, syphilis, etc., or nerve damage from pelvic surgery can make the penile nerves unresponsive. The penis itself may develop scarring inside from serious trauma, Peyronie's disease, or from a previous episode of priapism (a medical problem in which the penis gets stuck erect) so it can't expand properly. Certain hormonal problems can cause the penis to be unresponsive to signals. Many medications, including common ones used to treat high blood pressure, ulcers, fungus infections, and depression, can cause impotence. So can alcohol, methadone, heroin, tobacco, and various types of "downs."

What kind of treatments are there for impotence? They fall into five categories: Pills, penis injections, suction, leak-plugging, and struts. Since there are different causes for impotence, some treatments work better for some men than for others.

A few men have hormone deficiencies and are cured by testosterone replacement. Yohimbine is a commonly used medication which relaxes arteries and increases blood flow, although it is not specific to the penis. The FDA has stated yohimbine does not work for impotence, but some men who use it have good results. It is relatively nontoxic and is worth trying if you and your doctor agree.

The Accujack ads in the back of most men's magazines describe a time-honored device for treating impotence. These devices are marketed as a way to enlarge the penis; this is a dubious claim, and a partner of one Accujack enthusiast describes the textural results as "like sucking on soggy angel food cake." However, many men can get normal erections with vacuum devices and then use a cockring to hold themselves up as long as desired. Many men find using the Accujack an entertaining experience in itself. A caveat: leaving the ring on too long can cause problems. One diabetic man left a tight ring on long enough to cause gangrene, requiring major surgery. Men with impotence caused by artery problems may not have an adequate blood supply to the penis and scrotum and should probably not wear a cockring for longer than half an hour or so anyway. Men with heart disease, man's full lips for him to take a hit of the smoke, or having a man smoke contentedly while getting the blow job of a lifetime.

THE ALLURE OF SMOKING

Out of the hundreds of fetishists who are part of the one-year-old cigarette smoking fetish club The Smoke Exchange, no two tales of the fetish's origin are the same.

Some found the image of watching their father and his masculine shirtless blue-collar buddies smoking and drink-

Coburn, Mickey Rourke, Don Johnson, Bruce Willis, Steve McQueen and Montgomery Cliff. Of course, all smoking fetishists pay homage to the king of smoke, James Dean. Humphrey Bogart ranks highly as well. And fetishists are constantly scanning video stores for prison movies, war movies and truckin' movies.

All smoking men can relate to that image, whether a movie, a construction site, or at home, that made them decide to smoke--to emulate their idol and to be as masculine and sexy a up with rich, warm, relaxing smoke.

Finally, there's the exhale. Blowing a solid, thick silvery white cloud of smoke out his mouth (straight down like in high school when he would sneak around... or straight up in a confident robust way). Some fetishists enjoy watching a man exhale the smoke slowly out his nose--in an inherently masculine ritual.

The icing on the cake for many fetishists is watching a man with the ability to blow smoke rings--the sign of a truly dexterous smoker who loves smoking with style--someone who (more likely than not) doesn't even realize he is such an incredible smoker but is secretly proud of his smoking and eager to show off.

SMOKING TURN ONs

Within the cigarette smoking fetish community, there are as many turn-ons as there are fetishists. Each man has his own particular hot spot within the act of smoking and sharing smoke.

Some men are brand specific, but many aren't. To some, the Marlboro Man is a god to be worshipped and sought wherever he may be--a bar, a construction site, an airport, a stable, the woods, in a pickup truck, a rest stop, whatever. Others have a particular turn-on for unfiltered cigarettes, as they embody the true-grit kind of man who can take his smoke strong and uninhibited. Some men like longer cigarettes, as they symbolize the need for more smoke--a hunger not satisfied by a regular cigarette.

A lot of fetishists love Zippo lighters and the rituals of manhood that the image conjures. More often than not, the sound of a Zippo in action will cause a smoking fetishist to turn his head to see who is lighting up.

Two common cock stiffeners are the father/son smoking pair and the idea of blowing a guy while he's smoking--thus permanently associating the pleasure of inhaling smoke and feeling intense pleasure in his penis.

Smoke rings are rated highly as a big turn-on, as is double dragging and blowbacks (letting the smoke in your ing beers together the catalyst for the fetish. Others were first turned on while passing a cigarette back and forth in the boys' room in junior high school with the other "bad boys." Some remember that one construction worker, cop, jock or school teacher who smoked a cigarette like he was making love to it--every exhale symbolizing an intense orgasm of pleasure. Everybody has their own tale of initiation into the world of smoke.

And all have a favorite movie scene with their movie idol smoking in such a way that the mere recollection causes a raging hard-on. Among the hottest movie smokers to many fetishists are James Garner, Erroll Flynn, Nick Nolte, Ed Harris, Robert DeNiro, James man as he was.

And all smoking fetishists agree that the turn-on to cigarette smoking is a visual thing.

To the cigarette fetishist, the excitement comes from all stages of watching a masculine (often mustached or hairy) man smoke. First, watching the man flip the cigarette into his mouth, click the Zippo lighter and draw deeply on the cigarette with his cheeks indenting so deeply that they seem to hollow out.

Then there's the inhalation--in it's finest form the man opens his mouth slightly, letting the smoke visibly hesitate before he sucks it deeply into his lungs... immediately followed by a look of satisfaction, relief and pleasure. His chest rises strongly as his lungs fill intensely watch and appreciate each other. Playing with his nipples, I light two more cigarettes and Tom moans in anticipation as I clamp the filter end of each cigarette to his tits. The smoke curls up over his chest as he feels the heat and begins to squirm. His breathing becomes heavier as the cigarettes burn up towards his tits. He drags heavily on the smoke in his mouth; I replace it with a fresh one. I uncuff his left hand, and cuff his right hand to his balls.

"Now here's what you're gonna do, son. You better start beating your meat because I'm not gonna unclamp those hot smokes from your tits until you cum." He looks down over the cigarette in his mouth and sees the smokes burning closer to his reddening nipples.

"Come on, fireman, let's see you put it out." Grabbing his rock-hard dick, he jerks it harder and faster as his tits get warmer. Just as his nipples are about to burn he hyperventilates, and with a deep drag on his smoke shoots great wads of bitter tobaccoman cum all over his chest. Removing the burned-out butts from his nipples I can see in his eyes that this is a fantasy come true.

SMOKING COP WITH ATTITUDE

After almost one year of email messages, Rick and I were finally going to get together in person. Meeting at his place in the Village, the scene had already been agreed upon and he couldn't wait to service a Marlboro-smoking cop with attitude.

Standing in a CHP uniform with Rick down on his knees, I pull out a smoke with my tightly-gloved hand and put it in my mouth. "You wanna stay out of trouble boy then you'd better service me good or I'll throw your fucking ass in the slammer. You fucking piece of street trash, light my smoke and get to work before I kick your ass good." He grabs his Zippo and fires up my smoke. Taking a deep drag, I exhale a long stream of smoke in his face. "Fuck, yeah . . ." comes the response of approval as I push him down to polish my knee-high boots with his tongue.

Every time I put a fresh smoke in my mouth the boy interrupts his duties to light it. He moans with pleasure as he sucks on my smoke-tainted mustache and the tight gloves fragrant with the erotic smoke and leather aromas. One gloved hand around his hardening cock and the other around his head, I put my mouth on his to feed him the second-hand copsmoke he so desperately seeks. His cock becomes rock solid as his body becomes limp and the cop hears the muffled satisfaction of a boy who gets what he wants by servicing smokin' cops.

Smoke And Suck

By D. Travers Scott

I like to sit in a chair or on the edge of the bed, ashtray at my side, pants around my ankles or only just unzipped, shoes and other clothes still on, and a man between my legs.

I lean back in the chair, exhale up to the ceiling or blow down and around him, the smoke circling his hair and eyes like a crown. I pull his head off my dick and arch my back. The cig dangles between my lips as I use both hands to push his head down around my balls and shove his face into my ass. I watch the smoke curl through my apartment window. I idly stroke his hair, maybe slap the side of his head, push it down while his throat's full and hold it there, motionless while I take a drag.

I learned to smoke from my straight boyfriend. We were who-gives-a-shit college guys, wallowing in Ecstasy, acid, Jim Beam and whatever other self-destruction we could find. I was a sophomore and Ron was too, but he was a couple of years older than me. Ron smoked Lucky Strikes, straights. It feels ridiculous to have to add that — how can there be any other kind of Lucky Strikes? But there are. I can't believe they ever bothered making Lucky filters and filter lights.

Smoking was part of Ron's gestural language, as much a part of him as the way he scratched his face absentmindedly or ran his tongue over his chipped front tooth when thinking. I can see him tapping the Luckys pack against his thigh, clean and sharp like the Pop Art we studied in school. The enigmatic "It's toasted!" written across the label.

Ron would rip open the pack with his index fingernail, press from below to push up a cig in a full pack or shake out a loose one. Extracting the square. Sliding it between his curled-in lips. The light: always from the end with the label printed on it. An advantage of nonfiltered cigarettes: smoke the label end and no one can recognize your brand on a butt and detect that you've recently been there.

This logic held a noir-ish seduction for me, as Ron-my-Sam-Spade would explain it, narrowed eyes watching his exhale drift across Tuesday-night bargain pitchers up to the tin ceiling of some Chicago dive. I never really thought it through at the time, but so few people smoked straights anymore a filterless butt was as much an identifying piece of evidence as the brand name would've been. He'd blink several times while inhaling. Relax and exhale. Spit flecks of tobacco off his lips and begin a conversation.

ALAN SELBY: Innovator

By John McCloud

Ever used a bullet-shaped poppers inhaler? Worn a leather motorcycle cap? Played with a shower shot?

If you have, then you owe a debt of gratitude to Alan Selby, founder of Mr. S Leathers in San Francisco and one of the most active members of the leather community. It was Selby, a bearded English topman and the person this magazine once called the original leather daddy, who created all the above products (and many more) in the form we use or wear today.

Selby introduced American gay leathermen to the value of superior workmanship in leather gear. Disappointed in the slapdash caliber of most leather merchandise he found during a trip to San Francisco in 1969, the British Navy veteran returned to London and started a mail-order business, selling merchandise from London Leatherman. Shortly afterward, an American company, Stagecoach Leathers, contacted him to represent the line in the U.S.

Soon Selby set up a small factory to manufacture his own products, eventually opening the first Mr. S shop in London's Wandsworth district. In 1979, he relocated himself and the business to San Francisco's hot and kinky Folsom Street corridor.

Ten years later Selby sold Mr. S, and in 1990, he retired completely. Even though he no longer owns it, he still takes pride in the business.

"I really believe the quality of leather produced by Mr. S is as good if not better than any produced in the U.S.," he says. "They are probably by now the biggest leather company in the world and, I'm happy to say, the quality is still of the highest standard. That's one legacy I

CAPTAIN MORGAN, U.S.M.C. by FRANK O'ROURKE

Frank O'Rourke's writings have been unique, a head above mere porn, ripe with subtle and not so subtle erotica that grabs us in spite of ourselves. His original Captain Morgan was immensely popular when it appeared in earlier Drummers. People were running around wearing T-shirts that stated "I am Captain Morgan's slave". This newly-rewritten just-released Manhood Rituals book may or may not produce a rash of T-shirts, but not since Mr. Benson has there been such a top in the world of leather fantasy. Read it at your risk and don't say we didn't warn you. The all-new illustrations by Matt are a turn-on all by themselves.

BLAST OFF FOR IML—The Tom of Finland Foundation, Catalina Video, International Drummer and Drummer Tough Customers are sponsoring "Leather Buddies" a night of sleazy, manly entertainment at Chicago's Vortex Club on Friday, May 24th during International Mr. Leather Weekend. The evening's attractions include dirty dancing, raunch rooms, a bootblack, buzz cuts, Tom Tattoos, bondage, jock smelling, Best Butt and Juicy Armpit contests, and a Drummer Tough Customers photo session.

are comments buried within the 128-page ruling suggesting that much gay writing would necessarily fall into the category of obscenity by virtue of gays' correlation of sexuality with personal identity.

"Sexuality is relevant because obscenity is defined in terms of sexual practices," the judge wrote. "Since homosexuals are defined by their sexuality, and their art and literature is permeated with references to their sexual practices, it is inevitable their works will trigger the question of obscenity. The disadvantageous effect is unavoidable."

Mayor Proposes Gay Cruising Area

THE HAGUE

The mayor of this Dutch city has proposed setting aside a section of Scheveningen Woods for gay cruising. Nearby residents complained the entire forest at times is overrun with men looking for sex. City officials previously have given support for gay cruising in designated areas of the Haagse Woods.

Despite the mayor's support for the plan, the local neighborhood association has lobbied the City Council to reject it. "Letting air out of [gays'] auto tires will be only the beginning" if the ordinance passes, one neighbor warned a local newspaper.

Spanner Goes Online

Countdown on Spanner, an organization formed to aid in the defense of several United Kingdom residents charged, and in most cases convicted, of engaging in consensual SM, has formally established the Spanner Trust as a fund-raising entity and put it on line. Appeal of the men's convictions under British law is scheduled to go before the European Court this year. Should the court rule in the defendants' favor, the U.K. effectively would be obligated to both overturn the convictions and refrain from bringing anyone else to trial. It could also force the British to amend the laws to allow consensual SM.

To make a donation, contact the group via e-mail at Spanner@honour.demon.co.uk or regular mail at Central Station, 37 Wharfedale Rd., London N1 9SE, U.K.

Clotted Cream or Crisco?

L O N D O N

The newest twist in the local leather/SM scene is a regular Saturday afternoon social at Tribal Gatherings called Mr. Kipling Meets the Marquis de Sade, according to gay news columnist Dafydd Jenkins. Attendees get a proper afternoon tea complete with cucumber sandwiches, scones and fancy desserts along with "a good dose of sleaze." Although Victorian-era poet and author Rudyard Kipling might find himself taken aback by the outrageous dress and goings-on, the Marquis, in his time a denizen of some of the finer salons of Paris, no doubt would find much to appreciate in the presumably more refined atmosphere than one finds in the typical dungeon.

Court Upholds BBS Conviction

CINCINNATI, OHIO

A Circuit Court decision upholding the conviction of a straight California couple on violation of federal obscenity laws could have chilling implications for operators of gay bulletin boards, according to concerned observers. Robert and Carleen Thomas were convicted in federal court in July 1994 of transmitting pornography across state lines via Amateur Action, a sexually explicit commercial computer bulletin board they ran out of their home there material, I think there's reason to be really nervous. There are many groups who don't see any distinction between two men having sex and someone having sex with a donkey."

For many people, SM, water sports and various fetish scenes almost certainly fall into the same category as the Thomases' material. Consequently, bulletin boards catering to "outlaw" sex may be vulnerable to prosecution should someone - anyone, anywhere in the U.S. - complain to authorities.

Reports indicated the complainant in the Thomas case belonged to a Christian anti-pornography group whose specific aim is to ferret out material they consider objectionable and bring it to the attention of authorities. Should that be correct, more such cases, initiated in conservative jurisdictions against bulletin board operators in liberal areas, can be anticipated.

Communications Decency Act Challenged

PHILADELPHIA

A coalition of 20 groups and individuals filed suit in federal court to block legislation enacted by Congress and signed by President Clinton in February banning transmission of "indecent" and "patently offensive" material over computer networks. The coalition filed suit simultaneously here in the city known as the cradle of American democracy and in Los Angeles, charging the law amounts to censorship that will affect even the availability of abortion information. Organizations and companies involved in the suit include the American Civil Liberties Union, American Online and Microsoft Corp.

The judge in Philadelphia issued an injunction blocking enforcement of the indecency clause, but left intact the clause allowing the government to prosecute anyone who, knowingly or not, transmits "patently offensive" material to minors.

Known as the Communications Decency Act, the law is part of a broader bill generally aimed at revising telecommunications business regulations. It makes it a punishable crime to transmit indecent or patently offensive material online. The problem, critics argue, is the loose definition of the terms. Unlike obscenity, which has a specific legal definition, "indecent" and "patently offensive" remain vague terms with widely different meanings to different people at different times. Traditional "polite society," for example, regards any reference to sex, nudity or bodily functions as indecent, yet such references can be classified as obscene only when designed primarily to appeal to so-called prurient interests.

In any case, critics contend, online speech should be considered akin to print media and private communication, which have few restrictions, rather than television and radio, which have many. Observers say the issue is likely to be decided by the Supreme Court.

Police Arrest Personal Ads Publisher

DAYTONA BEACH, FLA.

Labeling the gay publication B. B. Ads obscene, local police raided the home and office of publisher J. Allen and seized all office equipment, account books, files and more than $600 in postage stamps and cash, along with many personal items and photographs. According to Allen, police also arrested him and charged him with a third-degree felony in regard to an alleged offer to sell a business dealing with distribution of obscene matter. Two months later, the publisher reported, they arrested the printer as well and charged him with two counts related to publication of obscene material.

Also known as B. B. Muscle Ads, the publication features personal ads geared toward body builders and users of vacuum pumps. Allen said the publication never contained explicit sexual stories, photos or images, although many ads included nude photos. "In fact, many subscribers have complained that the publication was not erotic enough," he added.

Allen denied he offered to sell B.B. Ads to what turned out to be an undercover detective. He also maintained B.B. Ads is not obscene. He claimed a tape he made of the conversation with the undercover cop will prove the officer lied about their exchange, while an examination of the publication should demonstrate it does not meet the legal definition of obscenity.

Judges Call Sodomy Law Unconstitutional

NASHVILLE

The state Court of Appeals unanimously ruled in January that a Tennessee law banning homosexual acts is unconstitutional. The three-judge panel called the law a violation of the right to privacy and said the state failed to offer compelling evidence to prohibit homosexual behavior. Tennessee Attorney General Charles Burson demanded the court review its ruling, saying he would appeal to the state Supreme Court. The Circuit Court, however, denied a request for an injunction against the law, stating it lacked the power to stop pending or threatened criminal prosecutions.

According to Abby Rubenfield, attorney for the plaintiffs in the case, "Technically [the ruling] means that people can still be arrested and prosecuted, but people who are arrested will have a darn good defense because this opinion says the law is unconstitutional." ■ photography since Fritscher and Mapplethorpe were lovers and the influences on each other's work would be inevitable. Still, when one examines the less posed, more spontaneous work of Fritscher, his individuality as an artist is clear.

Fritscher's examination of "homomascularity" through these portraits, both posed and candid, illustrate Fritscher's vision of male archetypes in American culture, enticing us to ask questions about manhood in America and the nature of male eroticism. Fritscher rejects the Playgirl school of male photography (which is nothing more than a re-working of Playboy's portrayal of women) for an aesthetic that explodes with male vitality. Occasionally the images evoke classical sculpture (as in his portraits of Don Russo.) More often they remind us of our own, often unrealized, sexual fantasies.

My personal favorites were the bondage photographs, such as David Sparrow Honeymoon Photo Album and Larry Hunt Bound and Hooded, that both aroused and disturbed. Also of special erotic (and aesthetic) appeal were the deceptively straight forward, Cowboy Underwear, John Muir American Bear and Jack Eye #2 portraits.

The Fantastic World of Bill Ward Volume 3

by Bill Ward, Published by Alternate Publishing, 4077 18th Street, San Francisco CA 94114, $7.95, 74 pgs.

Queer fans have known for years that a disproportionate number of queer comic book fans are into leather, so it was only natural that the genre expanded to include kink from the beginning of queer strips. Bill Ward was among the first to depict the leather world through graphic fiction, his superior artistic and story telling abilities exciting fans since his early Drum strips for Drummer in the late 1970s.

This new collection of his work includes three different strips. Starting with an adaptation of Robert Payne's The Exchange, Ward brings his extraordinary talents to task, creating an exciting world of men, sex, leather, and kink. As enjoyable as this adaptation is, however, it is in illustrating his own stories that Ward best shines, bringing his erotic vision to life with a flourish few comic strip artists have achieved.

Included in this collection is one of the best Drum story lines ever, Drum and the Bear. Drawing on the universally subconscious world of the totem, Ward strikes primal chords in a seemingly facile way, exciting that most precious of all sex organs, the brain, as few can. Sadly, the story is unfinished. One longs for the complete tale, however, perhaps as a full length graphic novel. Also included is Ward's strip, Zeke, a sort of horse hung Forest Gump. As amusing as these strips are - which is all they are intended to be, after all - they lack the erotic intensity of Ward's other work.

Recommended. Read and enjoy.

Bound & Gagged Photo Album II

edited by Bob Wingate, Published by The Outbound Press, Inc., 89 Fifth Avenue, Suite 803, New York NY, 10003-3020, $12.95, 60 pgs.

Because bondage, once achieved is static, its eroticism is hard to capture in photography. Another problem, especially in male bondage photography, lies in how we experience it. Do we eroticize the subject or identify with him? Since gay men tend to identify with sex objects, a certain muddying of the waters is inevitable. It is unavoidable, then, that Bound and Gagged Photo Album Volume II is, like the original, a bit uneven.

For the bondage aficionado these photographs will be of keen interest. Bondage art is prevalent, and much to be admired, throughout. The models are often striking, sometimes seducing us with an apparent wholesomeness that belies their erections. Of the photos depicting men already in bondage, whether struggling against their bonds or submissively accepting them, I found the iconographic quality of the Zeus and Cityboy photographs the most appealing. Of the photos depicting scenes in progress, those by Joe Fitzpatrick were especially intriguing, often making me wish I'd been there myself. Among the pictures sent by readers, there is at times a certain wit, as in the photo of a man in street clothes, bound and gagged, and left in a bath tub. Too often, though, the photos only smoking. By this time I was as hard as a rock. You should have seen him hit on his smoke. His cheeks would deeply indent, then you could see the smoke in his mouth disappear into his lungs as he took powerful inhales. As I peered over the divider, I could see his stomach and chest rise up as he inhaled the smoke. He'd hold it in for a long time, then always blow out a powerful and masterful cloud of smoke. At one point, he blew a perfect ring, and I almost came in my pants.

As we headed uptown in the taxi, we passed some adult theaters on the West Side. I commented that I used to love to go to porn theaters to watch girlie flicks and whack-off while smoking. He agreed that was fun. I became even harder.

I told him it was kind of weird to see other guys jerking off in the seats around me (which of course was a lie), but that part of me enjoyed being an exhibitionist and taking my cock out to J/O in front of other men. He got kind of quiet at this point—and I thought "I've lost him now!"

He then said in a quiet voice that he was sort of a voyeur—not an exhibitionist. My hard on got stronger, and I could feel pre-cum in my underwear. I thought "this could be it."

"A voyeur, huh." I said, "Have you roommate, so it's hard for me to J/O at home and I'm really in the mood." I said. "I even bought some lube in the Village and I have it on me," I added.

"If you want to," he said. "Wanna come up front and I'll find a place to park?"

"Sure" I said. My voice cracked. I ever seen people getting it on?" I asked—"or have you ever seen a guy jerking off?" I continued.

"No," he said nervously.

"Would you like to?" I asked. I tried to sound nonchalant in my questions, but at this point I was jumping out of my skin!!

He was quiet—then said "I dunno." He said that he had passed by a spot on 25th Street on the West Side where he thought he saw a guy jerking off—but it was dark and he hadn't been sure. He admitted that, although he was straight, he had been intrigued.

Trying to steady my nerves and excitement, I lit up a smoke. He did too. Both of us knew what my next question would be.

"Wanna see me jerk off? I have a was hyperventilating. We found a deserted side street (it was 4 a.m.) and we parked. I got up front with him and we both lit up again. He was hitting on his cigarette so hard. The orange glow of his smoke was so bright when he took a drag. And he inhaled even deeper than before. The smoke he exhaled was so thick—and never-ending. Slowly, I unzipped my fly and took out my cock. His eyes were glued to me—and he looked very nervous and excited. He too was hyperventilating. I lubed my cock.

I asked if he had ever seen something like this before, and he assured me he hadn't. By the look on his face I knew he was telling the truth.

As he continued smoking, I contin-ened cum and soaked in leather scent, licking the coated material, sucking it, doing everything with it but fucking swallowing it whole.

I thought of the day I met Jiff, the day that had resulted in the fuck of my life. I remembered, the open leather jacket, the leather boots, the black and yellow spandex tights, and of course, the leather jock strap. I had pulled into a rest stop to quench my thirst and eat a sandwich. The bike-a-thon wasn't a race in the usual sense of the word. All you had to do was ride the 600 miles after you picked up a bunch of pledges. It wasn't much of a challenge for me. I loved riding my bicycle and this was just a worthwhile excuse to ride it a little more. Getting off work for the occasion was an added plus.

I wanted to fuck with the guy in the worst way

I had just finished eating when another bicycle rider pulled in and stopped close by. But this rider wasn't your usual sort. He was dressed part bicyclist, part biker, and I knew he was out of his league. He wore an open leather jacket, leather boots and the tightest pair of spandex riding tights I had ever seen. And I had seen a lot of them since I worked in the clothing section of a sports equipment store, the same store that sponsored the biking event.

"Hi, buddy," he said, as he parked his two wheeler next to mine. "Mind if I join you? Fucking hot today," and without waiting for me to answer, seated himself at the picnic table I had commandeered. "Name's Jiff," he added as he settled opposite me.

"Glad for the company," I said. "I'm Kevin."

As it turned out he was a biker, the kind that used an engine, but was riding in the bicycle run for the same reason I was, to raise funds for the kids. Anyway, I was glad for his company but even more, I liked what he wore—the smell of leather always got me hot—and I liked what I saw around his crotch area. His tights were a black/yellow spandex, thinly woven, the outline of heavy cock meat running down one leg. Normally, riding tights are jet-black in front, probably to disguise a little, the business end of a guy's fuck equipment. But these tights were different. The front panel was bright yellow and the ridge his cock made as it rode along his leg was indistinguishable from hot flesh.

Yet one more peculiarity showed up in his crotch. With the loosely woven threads throughout his tights, his black cock hairs had managed to poke through so that a patch of dark grey tinted the bright yellow of the material just above where his cock stem would be hung between his legs. My cock had jumped enthusiastically when Jiff first dismounted, and hadn't subsided since. I wanted to fuck with the guy in the worst way and began trying to figure out a way to achieve that goal without chasing away the best prospect for a good fuck I had been able to manage for several days.

"Don't see the can anywhere, Kevin. Where the fuck is it?"

"There isn't one. Can you figure a rest stop without a place to piss? Unbelievable."

Jiff got up and turned toward the edge of the clearing. As he rose I noticed that his cock outline had grown an inch or two and the fabric was pushed out at least twice as far as when he had first arrived. The dark spot above his pubic hairs had become darker, and seemed to cover an even wider area than before. When he turned toward the bush, I gasped at the way his ass buns protruded against the flexible spandex, the crack which separated his ass my ass where he fingered my hole, and then went further to cup my cock and then my balls in his hand.

Jiff soon had me out of my tights and I went for his which took a little work getting them off over his leather boots. But soon we were both naked, Jiff from the bottom of his jacket to the tops of his boots; me, from the hem of my tee-shirt to my toes. We stood there, kissing, dry humping, simulating the fuck we both knew was only moments away.

Jiff pulled out some grease from somewhere and I felt strong hands turn me around and bend me over. I protested and stood up straight, evading his clutch and faced him again.

"What the fuck's wrong with you? I thought you wanted to fuck? I'm sure as fuck not going to get teased like this and walk away leaving you with a virgin hole. Now, turn around and bend over or I'll fucking break you in two."

This time he got rough and I found myself bent over double, greasy fingers lubricating my asshole. The more I protested the more he kept up his assault on my butt and the tingling of his lube job excited me in spite of my protest.

"Okay, okay, you can fuck me but you got to promise to take it easy. And there's a couple of conditions."

He let me stand up straight and pulled out of my ass but still held me with a powerful grip.

"Conditions? What conditions?"

"You have to work my cock meat with your hand while you fuck my ass."

"No problem. I love to pull dicks. What else?"

"You have to give me that thing you're wearing around your balls."

"Then what the fuck am I going to wear? I can't fucking go naked down the highway, now can I?"

"You'll still have your riding shorts. That's all you need."

His cock was riding high, dripping with the anticipation of driving his fuck meat between my tender cheeks, so he finally gave in.

"Okay, man, if I have to. Now turn around so I can finish greasing your asshole," and he was sliding his greased fingers along his throbbing shaft even as he spoke. He reached for me and had me in position and his slick fingers were into me again, driving in the lubricant like he wanted to preserve it for eternity. He inserted his fingers—one-two-three—running them in and out along my fuck hole, holding me bent and immobile while he worked me with his powerful hand. It was apparent that he wasn't about to let me go. I was going to say something when his two hands clutched my hips and he told me to shut up.

"I'll do everything that needs to get done, buddy. Just keep quiet and let me fucking get on with the job."

Then I felt him jam his uncut dick into my ass crack. It took him no time at all to find center and he drove into me hard, shattering any resistance from my sphincter. His hardness slid along my channel, burying his cock hairs and balls in my buns. He drew back until his cock

Walking on the Wild Side

Some of us are guttersnipes, who wander the back alleys of the mind—and the streets—in search of chain smoking sexual outlaws.

BY WICKIE STAMPS

I recently had sex with three different people within four hours. I did not know any of these people well. One individual was a total stranger. Another had a lover who had many friends lurking nearby. The third person, someone I knew vaguely, happen to be sitting next to me at a party at a Thai restaurant.

I had all this sex during a posh weekend conference held at a prestigious hotel. I performed my sexual acts in extremely public bathrooms, one being in a very conservative part of the city. At any moment my partners and I risked discovery—and arrest.

This evening of illicit sex actually began long before I ever met my bathroom sex partners. My mind had been spinning fantasies for months, perhaps years. It wanted out—of responsibility, civility and any form of acceptability. So it created egresses out of the work-a-day world and into the seamier side of life. It's a world my mind—and my body—knows intimately. I sit at my desk or stand in line at the bank my mind roves through back alleys, trawls public bathrooms, seeks frequenters of life's seedier environs. Once a willing partner is found, the acts we perform are always dark, dirty and brutal. The locations—back alleys, public spaces or abandoned buildings—are equally depraved. The sex I find in these places is always satiating and the people dangerous.

I am someone who chooses to act on these fantasies. Fortunately for me, so do many others. They, like me, get off by finding and walking on the wild side. Like me, if the sex is going to be hot, it requires an edge. We fuck illicitly. Illegally. And always with some kind of risk. Normalcy, legality, something has to be subverted. Subversion by definition requires that something, such as the government or perhaps a moral code of behavior must be overturned.

This mandatory subversive edge is why some of us get off finding then watching people smoke. Others get off just by smoking. Stogies. Cigarettes. Pipes. Choose your poison. The act or the observation of the act gets some people off. Because smoking is dangerous, disgusting. And totally raunchy. Only degenerates—like James Dean or Marlon Brando—smoke. Law breakers smoke. Criminals suck on cigars. Bastards that would as soon kill you as suck you off usually have a pack of camels rolled up in their tee shirts. People who smoke—and do other subversive things—might destroy our safe jobs, pillage our nice neighborhoods and fuck us up the ass. These same people hang around doorways and suck on things that will kill them. And they most likely do other sexually disgusting things. We hate them. We must be wary of them. We are, quite honestly, totally fascinated with these beings. They hang around in the same back alleys—and public bathrooms—that we do. We can only hope that, if we get up the nerve and enter those alleys they will light up a cigarette, grab us around the throat and fuck the shit out of us. Then when they are through with us, use us as their ashtrays. Yeah, that's what we want. To be ashtrays.

Unless we want to be the smokers. The fuckers, looking for some smarmy ashtray to fuck. ■
